

CONQUERING THE WORLD WITH YOUR OWN SKILLS

What are the most simple but significant skills to learn in order to be independent in the real world?

I have compiled the top five skills that are simple to master and play a vital role in the real world:

Cooking: Learn to cook a basic meal. You must know to cook at least one meal. There won't always be someone to cook your food at home; someday you will have to do it yourself. It makes you self-reliant.

Cleaning: Organize your living and work spaces. Keep your surroundings clean, your environment is a reflection of you.

Grooming and hygiene: Good grooming and hygiene are essential. Maintaining good hygiene is important for a healthy lifestyle. It is never too early to start being concerned about your appearance. First impressions matter.

Financial literacy: Try to save as much money whenever and wherever possible. Spend your money sensibly. Learn to invest your money in the right places.

Decision-making: Making decisions constantly may not necessarily be an easy task for everyone. Decisions become harder because of options, but learning to make quick and effective decisions is something one must learn over time.

These are the five most crucial skills that I believe one must master in life.
